

HIGHRISK PREGNANCY

A pregnancy is considered high risk when a medical condition or pregnancy-related complication threatens the well-being of you or your baby. Special testing may be necessary or you may be more closely monitored.